WHAT MIGHT GO INTO A PROJECT PORTFOLIO?

*Project Goals Newspaper Articles Interviews Photographs Pedigree Records
Feed Records Posters Activity Logs Videotapes Breeding Records*

Your portfolio will be a review of your entire 4-H Experience with Sheep.
From your first ewe/weather to your last.

As you think about what to include in your portfolio you will gain a new understanding (even surprises) about your Sheep Project and of yourself as a sheep raiser. There is no right or wrong answers about what to include in your portfolio. This is your story, about your experiences, your 4-H career. Here are a few ideas to guide you along the way.

- Description of the project. From the beginning to the present.
- Obstacles you encountered along the way.
- Successes, awards and rewards.
- Project goals. Your first goal and the others that followed.
- What you did to achieve your goals and the results.
- Explain what you learned in this project and about yourself along the way.
- Life skills you gained.
- How did the project and 4-H impact you or others?
- Individuals who impacted your project, both positively and negatively.
- Video, newspaper clippings or photographs of significant events.
- Audio or video interviews of yourself or others.
- Graphs, charts or selections from your personal journal.

The portfolio should include whatever you think will tell your story the best. Be creative and show who you are. You may use any media form (written, pictorial, video, power point, etc...) or combination of media forms you feel best suites you and helps to tell your story.
