Summary

This following reference chart and appendix summarize research produced by Master's Students in UCLA's Luskin School of Public Affairs and published in a June, 2013 report. The chart shows whether or not each of the 88 cities in Los Angeles County regulates 15 core urban agriculture categories studied by researchers. The "Ag Zone" column indicates whether or not each city has designated an agricultural zone (including hybrid zones such as Residential-Agricultural) within its zoning code. Following the reference chart, the appendix indicates all sections which regulate urban agriculture activities within each city's municipal and zoning codes.

Researchers located municipal and zoning codes on city websites and external code databases, and then searched the codes for all relevant references to urban agriculture activities. Searches included the exact words representing 15 core urban agriculture categories of flora and fauna, as well as additional search terms [listed in brackets].

Agricultural Waste [agricultural waste, green waste, compost, mulch, worm]

Aquaculture [aquaculture]

Bees [bee, apiary, hive]

Fish [fish]

Farms [farm]

Fowl [fowl, poultry, chicken, rooster, turkey, hen, goose, pheasant, egg]

Fruits/Vegetables [fruit, vegetable, crop, nut, berry]

Garden [garden]

Goats [goat]

Heavy Livestock [livestock, cattle, cow, dairy, sheep, ox]

Horses [horse, equine]

Horticulture [horticulture, ornamental, flower]

Nurseries [nursery, nurseries]

Pigs [pig, hog, swine]

Rabbits [rabbit]

Caveats

Urban agriculture activities are listed as permitted even if they are only permitted in certain zones under certain circumstances. The research focused solely on existing regulations which specifically pertain to urban agriculture, and did not delve into other regulations which, through their competing interests, might prohibit certain agricultural activities. Each of the 88 cities had different regulations and employed a variety of typologies for grouping urban agriculture activities. Differences in definitions of the same physical flora and fauna forced researchers to exercise judgment in choosing which regulations to cite.

Findings

Out of the 88 cities in the County, 29 have specifically designated an agriculture zone.

Agricultural waste may be personally used or transported in 45 cities, while only one city (Duarte) prohibits this. Forty-two cities do not make mention of agricultural waste in their municipal or zoning codes.

Aquaculture is the least regulated agricultural activity, as only Artesia expressly permits the confined production of aquatic life.

Bees are permitted in 35 cities, usually in specific zones and with conditions. Just 21 cities expressly prohibit bees, while 28 do not mention bees (or apiaries) in their codes. Forty-two cities reference bees in their municipal codes and 21 cities reference them in their zoning codes.

Fish or fish-keeping is permitted in 39 cities, one city (Gardena) prohibits fish, and 48 cities do not regulate fish.

Farms are permitted in 21 cities, no city prohibits them, and 61 cities do not mention farms in any regulation or ordinance within their municipal or zoning codes.

Fowl are permitted in some form under certain circumstances in 75 cities, while just seven cities explicitly prohibit fowl. Fowl is referenced in 59 cities' municipal codes and 49 zoning codes (oftentimes in both), although six cities do not reference any terms within this category at all.

Fruits and vegetables (or crops or nuts or berries) are permitted for growing or distributing in 51 cities, none prohibit the activities, and they are regulated by 44 zoning codes and 12 municipal codes.

Gardens are permitted in 48 cities, horticulture in 50, and nurseries in 68. Gardens, horticultural activities, and nurseries are not prohibited by any city, but many cities do not reference any of these activities anywhere in their municipal or zoning codes.

Goats are permitted in 53 cities and prohibited in 11. Goats are regulated within 42 zoning codes and 35 municipal codes.

Heavy livestock are permitted in 59 cities and prohibited in 14. This category of urban agriculture is referenced in 51 cities' zoning codes and 43 municipal codes.

Horses are permitted in 65 cities, while nine cities expressly prohibit them. Horses are referenced 52 times in zoning codes and 40 times within municipal codes.

Pigs are permitted in 36 cities; 25 cities prohibit them. Pigs are regulated by 36 municipal codes and zoned for in 33 codes.

Rabbits are permitted in 58 cities and prohibited in just five.

Guide to reading the appendix

This appendix is arranged in alphabetical order by city. If an agricultural category (as listed in the Urban Agricultural Reference Chart) is regulated, the category is shown in bold with the term used by that city in parentheses. Below the category is the location of the regulation(s) of the category within that city's municipal code.
